

Worker's Compensation Medical Provider Professional

To be successful in the Workers' Compensation arena it is not enough to provide quality care. Providers need to understand the nuances of the workers compensation arena. This knowledge will allow providers to work as a team member along with the injured worker, the payer/employer and other involved parties.

To develop a strong workers' compensation practice physicians must be viewed as an asset to the system. To be an asset to the system a provider must understand the needs of all parties.

Typically when a workers' compensation case goes wrong poor communication has played a major role. This is where providers often lack understanding. The providers who are able to meet the administrative needs of the payer/employer will be successful in the workers' compensation arena.

This program is designed to help providers excel in the communication process.
